Is there any way we can play music video and audio on OSX from HTML5 audio and video tag? Thanks, Miguel A: It's been a while, but as far as I know, NO, you can't play music video in Mac OS X (10.6+) and NO, you can't use HTML5 video (and no browser I know of is producing Mac OS X versions of them - I really doubt Apple would support that anyway). If you wanted you could try installing a webkit-based browser (like Qupzilla, Chromium, Safari) but they're pretty much just duplicates of Chrome, Safari and Firefox on Mac OS X and don't contain as many of Chrome's extra features. A: It is no longer possible to play back video and audio files in a web browser. For some time now, Apple's OS X operating system has used the NaCL API (Native Client) to use Pepper Flash (i.e., Flash) or Silverlight or natively using OpenTok or Ogg Theora. While those browsers may have needed some work to begin supporting HTML5, there isn't enough
