Serial numbers can only be found in the Hardware Information section. I am looking for a way to inventory my network equipment (and .NET applications) and log all events. I need to find a way to track and be notified about certain events. I want to be told if my computer has been attacked. I want to be notified when a network card has been disabled or an update procedure has been performed. I want to know when the computer was restarted or when a new program was installed on it. I want to be notified about problems occurring on my computer.
